The Complete Word Study Dictionary:

5218. ὑπακοή hupakoē; gen. hupakoés, fem. noun from hupakouō (5219), to obey, listen to something, hearken. Obedience, compliance (Sept.: 2 Sam. 22:36), unknown in Class. Gr. Generally in the NT it refers to the obedience of a slave to a master (Rom. 6:16). Elsewhere it always refers to the faith which obeys God's will in a special sense, of relationship and subjection to that which, in the sphere of divine power and revelation, is right (Rom. 5:19; Heb. 5:8). More especially, it refers to subjection to the saving will of God revealed in Christ and referred to as obedience to the truth (1 Pet. 1:22); obedience of faith (Rom. 1:5; 16:26); the unquestioning obedience that is demanded by Christ (2 Cor. 10:5). The word also stands alone as the manifestation of Christian faith (Rom. 15:18; 16:19; 2 Cor. 7:15; 10:6; Phile. 1:21; 1 Pet. 1:2, 14).

Syn.: hypotagē (5292), subjection.

Ant.: apeítheia (543), disobedience; parakoē (3876), disobedience; parábasis (3847), transgression.<sup>2</sup>

fut (future)

- (B) Of unclean spirits (Mark 1:27).
- (C) Of a sycamine tree (Luke 17:6).
- (III) To believe (Acts 6:7; Rom. 10:16; 2 Thess. 1:8).
- (IV) To yield to one's passions giving them the upper hand (Rom. 6:12, 16).
- (V) To obey God irresistably (Heb. 5:9).
- (VI) Of children's obedience to parents (Eph. 6:1; Col. 3:20).
- (VII) Of slaves to their masters (Eph. 6:5; Col. 3:22).
- (VIII) To obey an apostle (Phil. 2:12; 2 Thess. 3:14).
- (IX) Obedience by Abraham (Heb. 11:8).
- (X) Obedience of Sarah to Abraham (1 Pet. 3:6).

(XI) A distinction should be made between the meanings of hupakouíō and hypotássomai (5293), to place oneself under another, to assume a subordinate position.

(A) Hupakouíō is used of the obedience children render to their parents (Eph. 6:1; Col. 3:20). This refers to an obedience which springs from their sense of duty toward, and dependence on parents.

(B) This same verb is used of the servile obedience rendered by slaves to their masters (Eph. 6:5; Col. 3:22). They must obey by virtue of their subordinate position.

(C) However, in the NT, when the response of a wife to her husband is in view, it is hypotássō (5293) which is most often employed. It means to place under the rank of another, to put in submission. This position is expressed in 1 Tim. 2:13: "For Adam was first formed, then Eve. And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression." (1) The verb hypotássō can be used in the act. trans. sense. In such a case it would have a direct obj. and would mean to subdue and place someone in their proper position. In this sense the verb is used in 1 Cor. 15:27 where Paul speaks of God the Father at the end time subjugating all things including death and Satan under His feet: "For he hath put all things under his feet." The verb translated "put . . . under" is hypétaxen (aor. act. indic. 3d person sing. of hypotássō) in the act. trans. form. Then 15:28 says, "And when all things shall be subdued [hypotagē, aor. pass. subjunctive 3d person pl.] unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject [hypotagēsetai, fut. mid. indic. meaning, “the Son will place Himself voluntarily under the Father” {a.t.}] unto him that put all things under him [hypotáxanti, aor. act. part. dat. sing., referring to the Father], that God may be all in all.” God is presented as the One who subdues everything to Himself at the consummation of the age when Christ’s work of redemption is fully realized.

Hypotássō in its act. trans. form is never used of a husband with his wife being the direct obj. Instead the Apostle Paul commands, “Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it” (Eph. 5:25). Loving means discerning your wife’s need and meeting it as only you as a husband can meet it. And remember that as the church is imperfect and needs forgiveness, so does your wife. Do not take the role of God in your relationship with your wife. (2) The second instance that hypotássō is used act. and trans. is in Eph. 1:22, “And hath [the Father God] put all things under his [Christ’s] feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church.” This is similar to what the Father is said to do in 1 Cor. 15:27, 28. God the Father will subdue all things under Christ the Son and the first-fruits of i.e. Jesus’ resurrection (1 Cor. 15:20–28). (3) The third instance of hypotássō in the act. trans. form is in Phil. 3:21: “Who [the Lord Jesus Christ] shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue [hypotáxai, aor. act. inf. trans.] all things unto himself.” The Father God subdues all things to the Son God. (4) The fourth instance is in Heb. 2:5, 8: ‘For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection [hypétaxen, act. aor. trans. meaning subdued] the world to come, whereof we speak. . . . Thou hast put all things in subjection [hypétaxas, act. aor. trans.] under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him [hypotáxai, aor. inf. act. trans.], he left nothing that is not put under him [anupótakton (506), unsubdued, used as an adj.]. But now we see not yet all things put under him [hypotetagmēna, perf. pass. part. referring to everything that is yet to be subdued to Christ].”

(D) The mid. form hypotássomai is used in Luke 2:51 speaking of the Lord Jesus in His childhood placing Himself under His mother and His stepfather Joseph. “And he went [at age 12] down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject [hypotassómenos, pres. mid. part.] unto them.” This is in keeping with the command given to children to obey their parents as in Eph. 6:1: “Children, obey [hypakouēte, pres. imper.] your parents in the Lord: for this is right.” Even though Lord Jesus stood in a very special relationship with His parents, He was still under their authority. When it comes to a wife’s relationship to her husband, it is the mid. form hypotássomai, to place oneself under in one’s proper position, i.e. used as in Eph. 5:22, “Wives, submit yourselves [hypotássesthe, pres. mid. imper. 2d person pl.] unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord” (see Col. 3:18; Titus 2:5). The only time that hypakouō is used of a wife obeying her husband is 1 Pet. 3:6 when Sarah obeyed Abraham. The verb which is used of Sarah’s obedience to Abraham is not hypotássomai as used in 1 Pet. 3:1, 5 to designate the proper attitude of a wife toward her husband, but hypakouō. 1 Pet. 3:6 states, “Even as Sarah obeyed [hypékouse, aor. act. indic. 3d person sing. of hypakouō {5219}] Abraham, calling him lord [kúrion {2962}].” This word in 1 Pet. 3:6 concerning Sarah’s attitude is a commendation of her as an example to all godly women. And then Peter continues, “whose daughters ye are” or better still, “whose children you become” (a.t.). These faithful wives became children of Sarah by following her example.

Peter is telling these women not to fear the consequences of following the course of action which he has prescribed. They should be confident that God will be with them in their efforts to do what is right regardless of the difficulties they may face in doing so. A woman must do what is good (agathopoiēō {15}) and not allow scare tactics to overrule what she knows to be right.

1. Υπακοή and ὑπακούω, compounds derived from → ἀκούω, occur in the NT particularly in the Epistles. Only the vb. ὑπακούω is used (7 times) by the authors of the Synoptic Gospels (Mark 1:27; 4:41 par. Matt 8:27 / Luke 8:25; Luke 17:6; Acts 6:7; 12:13). The other occurrences are for the most part in Paul: ὑπακοή 11 times, ὑπακούω 5 times (cf. also ὑπακούω in Col 3:20, 22; Eph 6:1, 5; 2 Thess 1:8; 3:14). Particular interest is also shown by Hebrews (ὑπακοή once, ὑπακούω twice) and 1 Peter (ὑπακοή 3 times, ὑπακούω once). Both words (as well as ὑπῆκοος) are omitted entirely from John, 1-3 John, and Revelation.

These words are adequately rendered obedience / obey; as in English, they derive from “hear” (ἀκούω; Lat. oboedio [= ob + audire]). Only Acts 12:13 is probably using ὑπακούω in its literal sense: The woman at the door “listens” to the person seeking entrance, i.e., she is to open the door for him. In the NT, ὑπακοή and ὑπακούω do not refer to an “answering” on the part of God. In tracing the concept of obedience in the NT, one should consider other words (→ ἀκούω, ἐνωτίζομαι, ἐπακούω, πειθαρχέω, and the pass. of πείθω and ὑποτάσσω) as well as various idioms (see Deichgräber 120f.).

2. The Synoptic Gospels emphasize the idea that the “unclean spirits” (Mark 1:27) as well as wind and sea (4:41 par. Matthew / Luke) must obey Jesus. This amounts to subjection to Jesus’ commands (ἐπιτάσσω, Mark 1:27; Luke 8:25). Luke 17:6 sees the same connection between command and obedience (differently in Matt 17:20) in the context of πίστις, even if such πίστις is only as large as a mustard seed. Acts 6:7, in a summary, speaks of obedient subjection to πίστις (here: “faith” in the objective sense; see G. Schneider, Acts [HTKNT] I, 430 n. 83): ‘Ὑπακούω τῇ πίστει refers to “subject oneself to [the Christian] faith” or “come to faith” (cf. Rom 10:16; 2 Thess 1:8: τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ).

3. For Paul, faith (→ πίστις 6) is essentially a matter of obedience, just as lack of faith is understood as disobedience toward God and his message. This messenger of faith wants to move those he addresses with his gospel to “the obedience of faith,” i.e., to subjection to the divine message. The act of faith is an act of obedience (Bultmann, Theology I, 314), as a comparison of Rom 1:8 with 16:19 makes clear. Paul thus can create the expression ὑπακοὴ πίστεως (1:5; cf. 10:16; 16:26; → πίστις 3.b), indicating thereby the goal of his apostleship (cf. 15:18). Justification issues from the obedience of Christ, which Paul contrasts with the disobedience of the first man (5:19).

For humankind there is, according to Rom 6:16a, b, only the “either-or of slavery under sin or slavery under obedience (of faith), which lead to correspondingly different ends” (U. Wilckens, Rom [EKKNT] II, 34). The baptized receive this admonition: “Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal bodies, to make you obey their passions” (v. 12). Furthermore, “do you not know that if you yield yourselves to any one as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness? But thanks be to God, that you who were once slaves of sin have become obedient from the heart to the standard of teaching to which you were committed” (vv. 16f.). Paul can speak of a church’s obedience when he praises their conduct (2 Cor 7:15; Phil 2:12; cf. Phlm 21). Referring to his adversaries, Paul asserts that he will “take every plot captive to obey Christ, being ready to punish every disobedience, when your obedience is complete” (2 Cor 10:5, 6).

4. With the phrase ὑπακούω τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ 2 Thess 1:8 is drawing from Pauline expressions (Rom 10:16), though it does add the gen. “of our Lord Jesus.” 2 Thess 3:14 proscribes those who “refuse to obey what we say in this letter,” a reference to the entire contents of this pseudepigraphic Pauline Epistle (cf. W. Trilling, 2 Thess [EKKNT] 154).

Within the context of household codes Col 3:20 and Eph 6:1 admonish children to obey their parents (ὑπακούετε). Col 3:22 par. Eph 6:5 directs the same admonition to slaves regarding their masters. 1 Pet 3:6 can also be compared here; Sarah’s obedience toward Abraham is presented as a model for wives (→ 6).

5. Heb 5:8f. makes a direct connection between Christ’s obedience and that of Christians and their eternal σωτηρία: “Although he was a Son, he learned obedience through what he suffered, and being made perfect he became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey him.” At the beginning of the section that speaks of Abraham, the father of faith (11:8–16), we read that in faith (πίστει) he obeyed God’s command at his calling and set out on his journey (v. 8): “Faith responds, and precisely in so doing shows itself to be obedience” (O. Michel, Heb [KEK] 392).

6. 1 Peter concludes its admonitions to wives (3:1–6) with a reference to Sarah, who according to v. 6 obediently subordinated herself to her husband, for she called him her lord (Gen 18:12). The beginning of the letter (1:2) offers a triadic summary of Christian election: “destined by God the Father and sanctified by the Spirit for obedience and for sprinkling with Christ’s blood” (cf. L. Goppelt, 1 Pet [KEK] 83–87). This election is grounded in the Father’s resolution, mediated by the Spirit, and realized by obedience and by belonging to Christ. The expression “children of obedience” (1:14) is a Hebraism that refers here to the baptized (cf. “sons of disobedience,” Eph 2:2). The addressees have purified their souls “by obedience to the truth” (ὑπακοὴ τῆς ἀληθείας; 1 Pet 1:22). What is meant here is the process of coming to faith (cf. 1:21; further Acts 15:9; Rom 1:5; 10:16). On the concept of obedience in 1 Peter see (besides Frederick) N. Brox, 1 Pet [EKKNT] 260 (index s.v. Gehorsam).

CL & OT The vb. hypakouō, to listen to, answer, obey (which is derived from akouō) was used in secular Gk. from Homer on with the dat. of the person or thing, and also (as in the LXX) with the gen. of the person. The specialized meaning to open (to answer a request for entrance) occurs in Xenophon, Plato and other writers. The noun hypakoē, obedience, is rare and appeared late in secular Gk. (6th cent. A.D.). The adj. hypēkoos, obedient, is attested from the 5th cent. B.C. The LXX uses hypakouō mostly to render Heb. šāmah. Obedience is shown to men (Gen. 16:2; 22:18), to wisdom (Sir. 4:15; 24:22), and to God (e.g. Jer. 3:13, 25). In Isa. 50:2; 66:4 hypakouō translates Heb. ‘ānâh, answer. In Isa. 65:24 (with the v.l. ek-) it denotes God’s answer to human crying. The noun hypakoē also means an answer (2 Sam.

22:36, the only instance in the LXX). The adj. hypēkoos, obedient is used in Deut. 20:11 of subject peoples, and in Prov. 4:3; 13:1 of a son's obedience to his father.

<sup>NT</sup> 1. In Acts 12:13 hypakouō means to open in the sense of "answering the door". Elsewhere the word group (vb. 21 times, noun 15, most frequently in Paul) denotes obedience. The pattern of this obedience is Jesus Christ of whom it is said that he was obedient unto death on the cross (Phil. 2:5, 8). Through his obedience, which stands in contrast to Adam's disobedience, "the many" have been made righteous (Rom. 5:19). Heb. has a similar thought. Through his suffering Jesus learned obedience; thus he has become the source of eternal salvation to those who obey him (Heb. 5:8f.). His obedience to his Father does not exclude his being the Lord whom the demonic powers and the forces of nature obey (Mk. 1:27; 4:41 par. Matt. 8:27, Lk. 8:25).

The apostle Paul, on the other hand, sought to bring every thought captive in obedience to Christ; Christ is the highest authority over human reason (2 Cor. 10:5). The obedience we render to Christ is the obedience of faith. As an apostle to whom has been committed the preaching of the glad good news Paul made it his aim to establish this obedience among the nations (Rom. 1:5; 16:26). He has this obedience in view in Rom. 15:18 and 16:19. It includes submission to the apostle through whom Christ speaks (2 Cor. 7:5; 13:3; 10:5f.; Phm. 15). It is obedience to the preaching which brings righteousness (Rom. 6:16f.), and to the truth (1 Pet. 1:22). 1 Pet. 1:2 and 14 also refer to this obedience: Christians are "children of obedience", because this obedience must embrace their whole lives.

2. The use of the noun corresponds to that of the vb. Apart from Phil. 2:8, where it refers to Christ, the adj. hypēkoos also occurs in 2 Cor. 2:9 and Acts 7:39. Paul found in the Philippians (Phil. 2:12) the obedient attitude which he had expected from the Corinthians (2 Cor. 2:9). He had to warn the Thessalonians to have nothing to do with those who would not obey the apostolic instructions (2 Thess. 3:14). Besides those who obey the message of faith (Acts 6:7) there are those who refuse to obey the gospel (Rom. 10:16; 2 Thess. 1:8). Beneath all this lies the understanding of faith as an act of obedience. Moreover, obedience to Christ cannot be separated from obedience to his messengers and to the message they proclaim. Such obedience must work itself out in the life of the Christian. Christians are hindered by obeying the sinful passions of the body (Rom. 6:12). From obedience to the Lord it follows that one must submit willingly to earthly authorities, parents and masters; and these too must of course acknowledge the Lord Christ as the highest authority (Eph. 6:1–9; Col. 3:18–20). As an example and a warning from the OT, Acts 7:39 mentions the Israelites who refused obedience to Moses (Num. 14:3f.). In contrast, Heb. 11:8 names Abraham as an example of believing obedience (cf. Gen. 12:1–8).
